These are the possible origins of the word Yankee that I found. Thanks to the list for all the genealogical info posted! Bob

YANKEE

A nickname for a native or citizen of new England, especially one descended from old New England stock; by extension, an inhabitant of the Northern States as distinguished from a Southerner; also, applied sometimes by foreigners to any inhabitant of the United States. "From meanness first this Portsmouth Yankey rose, And still to meanness all his conduct flows." (Oppression, A poem by an American (Boston, 1765))

According to Thierry, a corruption of Jankin, a diminutive of John, and a nickname given to the English colonists of Connecticut by the Dutch settlers of new York. Dr. W. Gordon ("Hist. Of the Amer. War," ed, 1789, vol. I, pp. 324, 325) says it was a favorite cant word in Cambridge, Mass, as early as 1713, and that it meant excellent; as, a yankee good horse, yankee good cider, etc. Cf. Scot yankie a sharp, clever, and rather bold woman, and Prov. E. Bow-yankees a kind of leggins worn by agricultural laborers.

Of or pertaining to a Yankee; characteristic of the Yankees. "The alertness of the Yankee aspect." (Hawthorne) Yankee clover.

Origin: Commonly considered to be a corrupt pronunciation of the word English, or of the French word Anglais, by the native Indians of America. www.books.md/Y/dic/yankee.php

Meaning of Name: Yankee
Yankee: This word is believed to have been derived from the manner in which the Indians endeavored to pronounce the word English, which they rendered "Yenghees," whence Yankee.

The Phelps Tavern Museum: The Entertainment of Strangers uses period rooms and interactive exhibition galleries to interpret the use of the historic Capt. Elisha Phelps house as an inn from 1786 to 1849. Three successive generations of the Phelps tavern keepers are chronicled along with the social history of taverns in New England. From Masonic meetings to ordination balls, the Phelps Tavern hosted townspeople and travelers who arrived by horse, stagecoach and canal.

The Phelps Tavern Museum and Homestead is part of a two-acre complex owned and operated by the Simsbury Historical Society, which includes a museum store, research library, and award winning period gardens.

Concerning Seth Case
Received from Simsbury Historical Society in 2004

Know all men by these presents that I Seth Case of Simsbury in Hartford County & State of Connecticut do nominate, constitute & appoint my friend Asa Haskins of Simsbury to be my true & lawful attorney for me & in my name, to sue & be sued, plead & be impleaded in any action that is or hereafter shall be commenced in my name or against me, to recover any debts due as demanded in my favor & pay any against me, in as legal manner as I could do were I present & whatsoever my said attorney shall do shall be good & binding on me, also to pass deed as discharges or any other legal writing as witness my hand at Simsbury this 25 th day of September 1810.

Seth Case

In presence of

Calvin Barber

Hartford County SS
Simsbury this 25 th day of September 1810
Then personally appeared Capt. Seth Case signer of the forgoing power of attorney. I acknowledge the same to be his free act & deed before me

Calvin Barber
Justice of Peace

Note#1: Could this have been one of Seth Case's last acts in Simsbury, Hartford County, Connecticut before he traveled to Liberty Township, Delaware County, Ohio to settle there? Seth Case and his family appeared on the 1810 Census for Simsbury, Hartford County, Connecticut. However, on September 25, 1810 the Census was most likely completed by then.

Note#2: According to loricase.com an Asa Haskins married Seth Case's youngest sister, Abigail Case, daughter of Capt. John Case and Abigail Humphrey. This is probably the same Asa Haskins who accepted the power of attorney for Seth Case in Simsbury.

A Brief History of Simsbury

In the 1640's, when John Griffin and Michael Humphrey first crossed the Farmington River at "The Falls", they were searching for virgin pine forest where they could pursue their tar and pitch business. What they found was a verdant valley bounded by two low mountain ranges, rich with fish and wildlife. The native Massacoe Indians,of the Algonquin Nation, had lived off the bounty of the rich land and flowing river. The new settlers called the valley the "Massacoh Plantation."

Between 1648 and 1661, Indian lands were gradually deeded over to the Englishmen. In 1670, the Massacoh Plantation came to be named "Simsbury", probably after Symondsbury, Dorset, England. Many of the earliest English settlers came from Dorset, including Thomas Ford, the first to clear land and farm here.

In 1676, Indian disputes erupted into King Philip's War, and in March Simsbury was attacked by a group of Philip's warriors and burned to the ground. According to legend, their leader, King Philip, sat in the large cave on Talcott Mountain to view the spectacle. It is still called the Metacomet Ridge.

The War of the Revolution had a profound effect on the Town. Nearly 1,000 Simsbury residents, more than in any other war, served in the Revolution. One hundred Simsbury soldiers engaged in the Battle of Bunker Hill. Noah Phelps was the most noted hero, as it was his spying which led to the capture of Fort Ticonderoga by Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys.

Simsbury's earliest years tell a tale of the courage, resourcefulness, and dedication to principle that contributed greatly to the new nation.

Simsbury - The First Among Firsts

- In 1705, copper was discovered in Simsbury. Later, the copper mine became the infamous New-Gate Prison of the Revolutionary War. The first copper coinage in America was started by Doctor Samuel Higley of Simsbury in 1737.
- In 1728, the first steel mill operating in America was located in Simsbury.
- The first temperance society - "The Aquatics" - was established in Simsbury.
- The manufacturing of the first safety fuse in America started in Simsbury in 1836.

In the span of over three hundred years, Simsbury has grown into a Town with and ideal blend of heritage and commerce!

History of the Town Seal

The Town Seal pictures the Higley copper, the first copper coin to be minted in America; the Old Meeting House, a replica which stands in the Simsbury Historical center; the Tree, a symbol of the Town's natural resources; and a family group which is the base of our whole society.

The leaves on the outer circumference of the seal represent the hop vine, from which many familiar Simsbury names are derived, and the inner circle represents a fuse, symbolic of America's first such industry which was founded in Simsbury.

The seal was chosen from among many designs which were submitted during a competition open to all residents of the Farmington Valley between September 1 and November 30, 1969.

The winning entry was submitted by Allen W. Hixon and was later adopted officially as the Simsbury Town Seal.

Phelps, Noah, 1740-1809

Papers, 1733-1790
ca.125 items

Background note:

The Phelps family were early settlers of Simsbury, Conn. Noah Phelps, born on January 22, 1740, was the fourth of David and Abigail Pettibone Phelps' nine children. David, who was the son of Joseph Phelps and his third wife, Mary Case (daughter of Richard), had married Abigail on April 25, 1731. David died of smallpox December 9, 1760, and his widow did not remarry until January 1, 1772, when she wed Deacon David Strong of Bolton. Noah did marry and have children, but the names of his wife and offspring are not known.

Noah was involved in the American Revolution from the very first days, as a "chief projector and principal actor" of the "Committee of War for the expedition against Ticonderoga and Crown Point." The Committee was formed in Hartford in late April 1775, and decided that the capture of Fort Ticonderoga was the best way to protect the northern perimeter and acquire much-needed stores. About 160 men, led by Ethan Allen, journeyed up to Lake Champlain. Although the victorious attack on the fort on May 10 is well-known, not many know of the crucial role Phelps took in the enterprise. Two days earlier, Captain (later General) Phelps had entered the fort as a spy: "Pretending that his object was to get shaved, he avoided suspicion, and had an opportunity to ascertain the construction, strength, and force of the garrison. And he had the good fortune to elude detection, though as it afterwards appeared, his presence had began [sic] to excite mistrust before he left the garrison." (History of Simsbury, Granby and Canton..., 94-95) Phelps continued to serve for the duration of the war, and was promoted to Colonel. His brother, Captain Elisha Phelps, was a Commissary in the army until his death in 1776.

Noah Phelps was clearly a leader within the Simsbury community. He chaired the town meeting that passed the articles of confederation in January 1778, and in November of 1787, the meeting picked him and Daniel Humphrey Esq., as delegates for the Convention of the State of Connecticut, set to convene in Hartford in January and vote on whether or not to adopt the federal constitution. They were directed to oppose it, but "one of the delegates though voting as instructed by the town, took occasion to state that his personal convictions led him to favor the proposed constitution." (Stowe, 23). This might or might not have been Phelps. He held a variety of important positions, including Surveyor of lands in 1772 and 1783, Justice of the Peace for Hartford County in 1782, Judge of Probate in 1787, and Major-General of the Militia, 1796-1799. He died in 1809.

Scope and contents:

The Noah Phelps Papers consist primarily of materials relating to Phelps' service as a Captain during the American Revolution. There are bills for "refreshment of his company," "victualing and Liquor," and lodgings for his troops and horses, as well as a few receipts relating to Capt. Elisha Phelps, Noah's brother. There is an abstract of payment to soldiers of Capt. Noah Phelps' Company of Light Horse in Major Bull's Regiment for August 1777, as well as requests that Phelps "put up the pork" in Simsbury, and return all guns and bayonets to Governor Trumbull of Connecticut. There are accounts of loads of flour carted from Sharon to Simsbury, and an account of the quantities of pork and beef bought by Phelps. There are also a couple documents concerning mutinous soldiers.

There are two notebooks kept by Phelps when he was a surveyor. One from 1772 lists his travel expenses, and the other is an undated notebook filled with measurements he took in the greater Simsbury area. Several documents concern complaints he heard as Justice of the Peace. There are also copies of court records, including the case of Hezekiah Phelps Viets, who was charged in 1779 by Charity Hills of Windsor for "begetting her with child in fornication." There is also a lovely document signed by the proprietors of Victory, Vt., naming Col. Noah Phelps as their legal agent in 1784.

There are [illegible] from Noah Phelps's estate, and an account of the quantity of pork and beef bought by Phelps. There are also a couple documents concerning previous owners.

A RECORD AND DOCUMENTARY HISTORY

SIMSBURY

BY LUCIUS I. BARBER, M. D.

Published by
THE ABIGAIL PHELPS CHAPTER
DAUGHTERS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION
SIMSBURY, CONNECTICUT
1931

Simon Wolcott, was appointed and authorized by the General Court "to further the planting, and well ordering of the plantation of Massaco."

This Commission made a distribution and allotment of the lands to the early settlers in the different parts of the plantation, preparatory to its becoming a town.

Capt. Newbery was for many years active and efficient in the public affairs of the Colony, and held the office of "Commissioner" for Windsor and Simsbury.

3. Ensign John Terry was the son of Stephen Terry. He was born March 6th, 1637, and resided in Windsor till 1677. In that year he purchased of Joseph Parsons the "Cook farm" situated in the bend of the river on the east side, opposite the "Dug-way." This was the first farm settled and improved in Massaco. There is a tradition that John Terry was the first town Clerk of Simsbury, but this could not have been true. The town was organized in 1670, and of course, its clerk chosen at that time. In the Deed from Parsons to John Terry, he is described as "of Windsor." This deed is dated Dec. 1677. He did not come to Simsbury till after the burning of the town in 1676. His name first appears on the town records in 1678, in connection with those of Thomas Barber and others, in a proposition to build a grist mill and a saw mill on Hop brook.

In 1683, he was chosen Ensign of the Train-band, and in 1686, he was chosen Lieutenant, at that time the highest military office in the town. He was elected one of the Selectmen, and held other important offices of trust in the town. He lived on the east side of the river, and gave name to the settlement, and afterwards the School district of "Terry's Plain", where some of his descendants are still living. He died on the 30th of April, 1691.

4. Mr. John Case was another of the Patentees of the town. He came with his family from Windsor in 1669, having been appointed by the General Court "Constable for Massaco". He is mentioned in Matthew Grant's Old Church History as residing in Windsor, and having six children born to him before leaving that town. Mr. Case was one of the most prominent and active citizens of Simsbury. He held successively all the important offices of the town, was often appointed on Committees in Civil and Ecclesiastical affairs, and was repeatedly chosen a Representative in the General Court. He resided at Wetaug, on the west side of the river. His death occurred in 1703.

5. Mr. Joshua Holcomb was another of the Simsbury Patentees. He was the eldest son of Thomas Holcomb, the emigrant who came to Windsor at an early day, where he died in 1657. Joshua Holcomb was baptized in 1640.

In 1663 he married Ruth Sherwood, who bore to him three children. In 1668, the Committee allotted to him a home lot of four acres, "near Thomas Maskill's," on the east side of the river, near Terry's plain. Here he soon after settled. His house was north of the present road to Windsor and Hartford, and near the old "Training ground". He was one of the sound, substantial men of his time, and was active in ecclesiastical and civil affairs, and greatly respected. He died in 1690.

6. Mr. Samuel Wilcoxsun was the sixth-named Patentee of the town. He is said to have come from Hartford. However this may be, his name is in the list of about 25 persons, who in 1668, "appeared before the Committee, Deacon More, Simon Wolcott and Capt. Newbery, in Windsor, to take up land in Massaco." This Committee, the same year, measured out to him a lot at "Nod Meadow" — "over against Wetaug." He settled there about that time, and was, through life, one of the foremost citizens of the town in all public matters. On important occasions, requiring the action of a Committee, Serg^{t} Wilcoxsun was frequently chosen to discharge such duties. He held in succession all the important offices of the town, and was many times a Representative in the General Court.

Serg^{t} Wilcoxsun was eminently reliable and trustworthy; a man wise in counsel, and of sound judgment. He died March 12th, 1713.

7. John Higley was another of the Patentees of the town, and one of the most prominent. He probably emigrated directly from England, about 1670.

In 1671 he married Hannah Drake, daughter of John Drake, and had a house on Broad Street, Windsor. In 1672

SIMSBURY SOLDIERS IN THE WAR OF THE REVOLUTION

The idea for this book was the result of a search by a former Regent, Mrs. Jane Curtiss Holcomb, for a contribution to the Bicentennial celebrations from the Chapter.

Mrs. Holcomb asked Mrs. Emerson Clark to head a committee of members of the Chapter to research soldiers who served from Simsbury during the Revolutionary War. The Research Committee was formed by volunteers from the membership and they spent nearly three years poring over records.

As Simsbury earned the sobriquet, "Provision Town" due to her supplying, proportionately, more men and supplies than any other town, over 1,000 soldiers had to be considered.

Criteria was established for the inclusion of a soldier and/or Patriot. He had to have been born, died, or served in a Simsbury company; been paid for by a Simsbury resident; or paid for by the Town, as defined by its boundaries during this period of history.

Thus, by using this criteria, the committee was able to eliminate those that could not be definitely proved to have been in a Simsbury company, etc. The final total is just over 800 soldiers.

Before the results of the long hours could be put into print, Mrs. Holcomb moved out of state and the project lay dormant for awhile.

Then, Mrs. Lucien E. Dupuis was asked to see that the book was edited and published so that the many volunteer hours would not be wasted. She spent another 2½ years preparing the material into a readable and easily understood format. She also cross-matched as many families as time permitted, to add another dimension to the project.

Another six months was spent by the Production Staff to prepare the information for the final draft. Then, the Layout and Design Staff spent still another four months preparing the final draft for publication.

No attempt has been made, nor was it ever intended, to make this a genealogy book, per se. Instead, we hope you will consider it a TOOL that might provide a much needed clue for that elusive bit of information needed. The data given is short and to the point, with few details. We've tried to keep a simple format so that one does not need to be a genealogist in order to enjoy the book. While the format is consistent throughout, the make-up of each page was left to the preference of the individual working on their particular section.

The volunteers had never produced a work of this nature before and entered into this project a little apprehensively. However, after many hours of learning their new craft, they are proud to present the result of their efforts:

CAPT. FREDERICK HUMPHREY, son of Capt. Ezekiel Humphrey and of the fourth degree in descent from the first Michael Humphrey, of Windsor. He married Ruth Tuller, daughter of Ensign Isaac Tuller. He resided in the early part of his family state, in the north-west part of Avon, then called Whortlebury Hill, until 1789, when he built the most ancient house now standing in Collinsville, where he resided the remainder of his life. For many of the last years of his life, he was the owner of about four-fifths of the land on both sides of the river where the village of Collinsville is now situated.

He was a man of stately and robust frame, with strength and resolution in proportion to it. In the year 1792, he, in company with his brother, Col. George Humphrey, erected a forge for the manufacture of iron. It was situated on the then east branch of the river, at or very near the site of the old stone shop that has a steeple and bell. It was so much damaged by the Jefferson flood, so called, in 1801, that it went into decay from about that time, and was swept off by the great flood of 1804. A grist-mill and saw-mill were afterward erected there, but were both removed in 1827, or soon after, to make room for the manufacturing establishment of the Collins Co.

Leaning on the widow's God she saw them grow to manhood and womanhood, and one by one go out from her protecting care to homes of their own. A mother's life work was done. REGISTER,

Of Marriages, Births and Deaths, in the families of the first settlers in Simsbury.

This Register is compiled chiefly from an old manuscript book, in the possession of JAMES LOOMIS, Esq. of Windsor, "made out May 18, 1674," from an older book then stated to be full; to which additions were made, during a few years, after 1674. These books unquestionably contain the records kept of these events, by the several clergymen who officiated at Windsor, during their occurrence. The one, from which these extracts are made, is in a mutilated condition, and in many places, illegible. It does not of course contain the births of children born before their parents removed to Windsor, nor, generally, after they settled in Simsbury.

In compiling this Register, a considerable amount of matter, in addition to the above, has been derived from the state records, and from the town records of Windsor and Simsbury. It is not claimed that this account is perfect, or that it can be made so. But the design has been to include in it all that has been discovered relating to the subject as connected with the early inhabitants of Simsbury. Where names or dates are wanting, they were so in the originals from which the copies are made.
